

""Twitter handle (and profile name): CBennettLearns (Carrie Bennett)

Twitter description: Facilitator, mediator, educator. Backyard chicken lover. Retired derby girl. Embracing conflict for transformation.

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Carrie Bennett is a facilitator, mediator, and educator. She believes that the most important conversations to have are often the most difficult to navigate. Carrie helps teams get to the heart of what matters most so they can make well informed decisions together. Prior to starting her facilitation practice, Learning Through Difference, LLC, Carrie worked in K-12 education for over 10 years. Carrie's past clients include the United States Forest Service, the City of Eugene, the City of Fort Collins, the University of Wyoming, and Colorado State University. Carrie has a MA in Conflict and Dispute Resolution from the University of Oregon School of Law."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: Learning Through Difference, LLC - Transforming Conflict Into Learning and Growth

Headings: Welcome; Recent Posts; Spicy Or Developmentally Appropriate?; Meetings People Want to Attend; Where Do you Eat By DIA?; Making the Most of a Fort Collins Work Trip; Testimonials; Thoughts for the Day; Our Strengths; Social; Learning Through Difference, LLC; ; ;

Paragraphs: Transforming Conflict Into Learning and Growth; Learning Through Difference, LLC; At Learning Through Difference, LLC we believe that the conversations that most need to happen are also the most challenging to navigate. We help teams get to the heart of issues with efficiency and safety. When teams can talk about what matters most, there's nothing they can't accomplish.; While conflict is the most basic of human experiences, it is also one that many feel poorly prepared to manage well. Learning Through Difference, LLC provides structures and skills that help groups be hard on problems but be easy on people. We will help your team transform the stress, frustration, and uncertainty that comes with conflict into learning and growth. Read on about our services or contact us to explore your unique needs.; ; WOW! My last blog post was a whopping FIVE years ago! The post before that one is from July of 2017. By the looks of my website, you'd think I'm complete off my game and/or out of the business entirely. In fact, I've been busier than ever both professionally and personally. My first kiddo was ... Continue reading Spicy Or Developmentally Appropriate?; Tomorrow I have the tremendous honor of presenting at Fort Collins' Startup Week. As a hub for innovation (it's not just the birthplace of good beer!), Fort Collins has a thriving entrepreneur community and I'm excited to get to share some tips with this year's attendees. The workshop description says: We're all familiar with the ... Continue reading Meetings People Want to Attend; Given the happily busy nature of this spring and summer, content blogging has taken a backseat to simply working as of late. Starting next week, I'm happy to be welcoming a new working group from the United States Forest Service to Denver. To help this group, I again want to offer some practical tips for ... Continue reading Where Do you Eat By DIA?; Normally on my blog I share ideas for managing conflict, making the most of time in meetings, and ways that I see groups excelling at bringing out the best of one another in hard circumstances. This week I have the opportunity to with with a team whose members are coming to Fort Collins from all ... Continue reading Making the Most of a Fort Collins Work Trip; This slideshow requires JavaScript.

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About Carrie Bennett - Learning Through Difference, LLC

Headings: About Carrie Bennett; Share this;; Follow me on Twitter; Recent Posts; Tags; Testimonials; Thoughts for the Day; Our Strengths; Social; Learning Through Difference, LLC; ; ;

Paragraphs: Transforming Conflict Into Learning and Growth; Learning Through Difference, LLC; Carrie Bennett started her consulting practice in 2015 after completing a Master's Degree in Conflict and Dispute Resolution from the University of Oregon School of Law. Prior to this, Carrie worked for over 10 years in K-12 public education as a teacher, dean of students, and mentor for beginning teachers.; Carrie is fascinated with the ways that well designed processes brings out the best in teams while no process at all brings out the worst in those same individuals. It's not enough to just put people in a room together. To get to the heart of issues that really matter, teams need structure and support.; Carrie's past clients include federal agencies, city governments, labor unions, universities, school districts, nonprofits, and small businesses (see the testimonials in the footer!). A skilled trainer, Carrie has co-taught courses on collaborative governance and facilitation through Portland State University and guest lectures with the Center for Public Deliberation at Colorado State University in Fort Collins.; In addition to her paid practice, Carrie has volunteered as a community mediator and small claims court mediator in both Oregon and Colorado. Carrie has served on multiple nonprofit boards.; Outside of work, Carrie is an avid outdoors-woman, gardener, and backyard chicken enthusiast. She loves traveling and being reminded of ALL the different ways people of the world meet their needs. Carrie lives in Laramie, Wyoming with her husband Drew and two young sons.; This slideshow requires JavaScript.

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based solely on the provided information, it can be inferred that this organization is focused on conflict resolution and communication. The website's content includes information on services such as facilitation, mediation, conflict resolution training, and conflict coaching. The organization also provides resources and blog posts on topics related to conflict resolution and communication in various settings, including families, nonprofits, workplaces, and communities. Additionally, the organization has a presence on social media platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, and YouTube, suggesting that it actively engages with its audience and promotes its services and resources."""