

""Twitter handle (and profile name): ivn (Independent Voter)

Twitter description: <https://t.co/PeWqQ5vqeD> is a leading nonprofit news and information platform that encourages all people to join the public policy conversation.

Description of the organization from a third party source: "The mission of Independent Voter Project (IVP) is to create an environment where nonpartisan voters can participate effectively in public policy decisions and to provide voters with politically neutral and reliable information."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: Independent Voter Project | Engaging & Defending Nonpartisan Voters

Headings: Since 2006; Defending your right to vote.; Our Focus; Meaningful Election Reform; A Primary for ALL Voters; A more powerful voice; The Existence; Current Projects; 2024 Make It With Mexico Conference Announced; San Diegans for More Choice; IVP Petitions US Supreme Court Over California Presidential Primaries; How YOU Can Help; Our History; What kind of primary does your state hold?; Give Monthly; More from Independent Voter; Our affiliations

Paragraphs: IVP is most well-known for authoring California's successful nonpartisan primary reform. Lasting election reform requires a practical approach. Independent Voter Project analyzes the legal, political, and social barriers to success, to focus on reforms that move us forward.; It's simple. Taxpayers fund them. Public officials run them. So all voters should get to vote in them.; Pundits ignore us. Primaries exclude us. Political scientists say we are just "closet partisans."Nonsense.The Existence is a monthly giving program that allows us to challenge the partisan establishment, make lasting election reform possible, and tell the political class: you can't ignore us any longer.; Following the success of the inaugural "Make It With Mexico" conference in 2023, the Independent Voter Project is bringing even more stakeholders together for 2024.; We've joined forces with national reformers to bring San Diegans more choices at the ballot box and better representation.; The Independent Voter Project is asking the Supreme Court of the United States to recognize a fundamental infringement on the right of every voter to participate in taxpayer-funded elections, whether or not they want to join a political party.; Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit. Suspendisse varius enim in eros elementum tristique. Duis cursus, mi quis viverra ornare, eros dolor interdum nulla, ut commodo diam libero vitae erat. Aenean faucibus nibh et justo cursus id rutrum lorem imperdiet. Nunc ut sem vitae risus tristique posuere.This is going to have a dope timeline below it...; Not sure what kind of primary election your state holds? No problem! Our interactive primary map lists each state's primary and contains useful resources.; The Independent Voter Project (IVP) is a 501(c)4 organization that seeks to re-engage nonpartisan voters and promote nonpartisan election reform through initiatives, litigation, and voter education. Learn more about us.

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About the Independent Voter Project

Headings: Energizing nonpartisan voters; About Independent Voter Project; About IVP; Our Vision; Our Mission; Our Goals; Our Principles; Our Victories; Our History; Background; Our Initiative Work; Our Legal Work; Our Publication; Our Research and Conferences; Our affiliations

Paragraphs: The Independent Voter Project (IVP) is a 501(c)4 organization that seeks to re-engage nonpartisan voters and promote nonpartisan election reform through initiatives, litigation, and voter education. IVP is best known for authoring California's successful nonpartisan primary. We work with organizations around the country to reduce the institutional barriers that limit electoral competition, restrict the nonpartisan right to vote, and insulate the two major parties from competition. We believe democracy functions best when the most people participate and representatives should be accountable to their entire community, not just their party.; To create a political environment where nonpartisan voters can participate actively and meaningfully in local, regional, state and federal public policy decisions, regardless of party affiliation.; To provide voters with politically neutral, accurate, and reliable information about important public policy issues and to encourage non-partisan voters to vote and to participate in the democratic process.; To ensure every voter, regardless of party, has an equally meaningful vote.; To challenge the institution rules that insulate major parties from competition.; To ensure taxpayer-funded elections serve the public, not private parties.; Remain steadfastly nonpartisan and nonideological.; Support policies that balance populist sentiment with practical public policy.; Be straightforward and transparent about who we are and what we stand for.; Be willing to be wrong and to correct mistakes in an open and honest manner.; IVP seeks to re-engage nonpartisan voters and promote nonpartisan election reform through initiatives, litigation, and voter education. IVP is most well-known for authoring California's nonpartisan top-two primary which was passed by the voters in 2010. IVP also authored San Diego's successful Measure K, which passed in November 2016.; IVP was founded in 2006 by Co-Chairman Steve Peace, with the help of a $1 million grant from John Moores, following a career in state government as a member of the Assembly, the Senate, and as the State's Finance Director. Mr. Peace saw the increased polarization of public policy debate and decisions and imagined a process by which those voters and citizens who had become increasingly disenfranchised and disillusioned by the public decision-making process could again become active participants.; Since 2006, IVP has focused on ensuring that independent voters know their rights under California's complex primary laws which allowed them to vote in most partisan primaries only upon requesting a "Party" (e.g. Democrat or Republican) ballot.; By educating voters about the steps needed to participate in primary elections, IVP has successfully increased independent voter turnout in California's elections. IVP conducted extensive research and experimental voter education programs targeted at independent voters in 2006, 2008, and 2010. From the 2006 to 2010 midterm elections, IVP increased independent voter turnout by 419,917 voters.; For more than a decade, IVP has been educating millions of voters that are concerned with the status of our electoral system all across the country. IVP has launched initiatives nationwide, from Arizona to New York, to replicate the public education and reform processes that proved successful in California.; In 2014, IVP launched its long-term national legal by filing a complaint that challenged the constitutionality of New Jersey's closed primary system. IVP took the case all the way to the Supreme Court.; In 2016 and 2017, IVP filed two amicus briefs in support of the plaintiffs in the case Level the Playing Field, et al. v. Federal Election Commission challenging the Commission on Presidential Debates' exclusionary debate rules. The federal district court has yet to final ruling on the merits of the case.; IVP is currently in litigation with the California Secretary of State, challenging the current "semi-closed" presidential primary system the disenfranchises almost 6 million California's.; IVP's research identified the need for a partisan-free communications medium for independent voters. That research led to the introduction of an online platform dedicated to providing news about politics and important issues for independent voters. IVP and its sister organization, the Foundation for Independent Voter Education (FIVE), publish IVN.us to provide unfiltered political news and policy analysis from across the political spectrum.; Today, IVN.us has grown to an award-winning open-source platform that has been utilized as a crucial voter education tool for successful reforms nationwide. It provides a base for independent voters, which are understandably difficult to coalesce. That base now totals over half a million voters on Facebook and reaches millions of others daily.; IVP bases its work on finding good information and researching critical topics relative to public policy and reform. IVP regularly hosts conferences convening a blend of elected officials and interest groups to jointly hear experts speak on various topics important to timely policy discussions.; The purposes of the conferences are two-fold.; First, interest group leaders and elected officials rarely have time to duly consider background information about these important policy issues. The IVP conferences provide that background from a variety of viewpoints.; Secondly, there is rarely a time and place for elected officials and diverse interest groups to gather around a table and discuss the options that might lead to solutions to the policy questions of the day. The IVP conferences provide a setting, away from the Capitol, to both consider expert information and to engage in discussions about those policy matters. Both interest group representatives and elected officials find this time valuable.; In addition, IVP commissions polls and focus groups to gain an understanding of how the public responds to and is thinking about public policy and the decision making and electoral processes. This research informs IVP's programs and projects.

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based solely on the provided information, it can be inferred that this organization is focused on promoting independent voting and electoral reform. They appear to be actively engaged in various initiatives aimed at informing voters, engaging leaders, and reforming elections. The organization has a presence on social media platforms such as Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter, and they also have a website with sections dedicated to their work, updates, and ways to get involved. Additionally, they have a petition section where individuals can sign petitions related to presidential primaries, nonpartisan elections, and other topics. The organization also accepts donations through a donor box link. Overall, the information suggests that this organization is dedicated to advocating for independent voters and working towards electoral reforms that promote fairness and transparency."""