Twitter description: Together, weâ€™re building peace through music and education. Transforming lives and communities by making the arts accessible to all. Founder & CEO @MalekJandali

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Pianos for Peace is an annual open festival of music using colorful, painted pianos to inspire artists and unite people in the community through shared values of beauty, truth and harmony. For two weeks every fall, we bring beautifully painted pianos to public parks and streets throughout metro Atlanta from September 1-18, 2017 for everyone and anyone to enjoy. As one of the largest public art display projects in Atlanta, Pianos for Peace will feature 50 pianos and impact an estimated half a million Atlantans and visitors this year. After the two week outdoor festival, all Pianos for Peace will be donated to local schools, nursing homes, healthcare facilities and community centers where our volunteer artists will participate in year long meaningful programs making art accessible to all. The Pianos for Peace team, staff, artists, volunteers and friends work hard all year round to plan this unique outdoor event. Our Ambassadors for Peace unite and transform communities by building peace through music and education."

COMMISSIONER; The city of Atlanta has vast cultural resources, yet too many among us have minimal access to arts experiences. One of the most disheartening statistics is the decline of arts education in underserved populations, especially in elementary schools. Students in underserved communities who are highly engaged in the arts are more likely than their peers with low arts involvement to obtain gainful employment, complete college, and volunteer in their communities.; Pianos for Peace is committed to bringing meaningful arts programs to our under-resourced schools, community centers, healthcare and senior care facilities. Each Pianos for Peace program is defined by the needs of our partner communities, the volunteer service of artists, and by our commitment to build peace through music and education.; Pianos for Peace programs are needed now more than ever. Music Therapy is one of our three major programs that serve schools, hospitals, and senior care facilities in our community. The majority of our hospital patients and nursing home residents have never experienced creative arts, despite the proven fact that music therapy heals. Art is a medicine that heals body, mind and spirit.; DOWNLOAD REPORT_x000D_ nonprofit organization (EIN 47-4784836); Music education provides personal benefits to students that enrich their lives. Participating in an ensemble enhances feelings of self-achievement, assisted individuals in overcoming challenges, and builds self-confidence. Moreover, the social benefits of music education can continue throughout a student's life and career.; This report will outline the positive impact of our programs on the community as well as the benefits of our annual outdoor festival. Only through meaningful partnerships and joining hands with champions for the arts and our Ambassadors for Peace, are we able to unite people and uplift the lives of individuals and families.; We thank you for your generous support and contributions that help us transform communities through the soft power of the arts. Let's unite to help make the arts accessible to all and build peace through music and education.; First Name; Last Name; Email; SUBSCRIBE; Pianos for Peace actively engages people with special physical or different intellectual needs and our programs are focused to serve underserved communities in need.
