

""Twitter handle (and profile name): backwrite (John Backman)

Twitter description: Writing about faith, the contemplative spirit, and their surprising relevance to today's difficult issues (personal and global).

Description of the organization from a third party source: "As a regular contributor to Huffington Post Religion and an associate of an Episcopal monastery, John writes extensively on spiritual topics, including contemplative practice and its lessons for addressing the deeper issues of our time."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: John Backman - On faith, the contemplative spirit, and today's difficult issues (personal and global)

Headings: Home; Subscribe...; How can I go deeper?

Paragraphs: Registration confirmation will be emailed to you.; This website is about living ever more deeply into the One I call God. It is Christian and Zen, monastic and mystical, all filtered through the depths of my own heart. In these pages you'll find blog posts and other writings on spiritual topics like contemplation, dialogue across divides, and spiritual direction. You can even use the photos for meditation. So welcome. May something in here spark something deeper in you-and bring you closer to the Ground of All Being.; By the book I mean Why Can't We Talk? Christian Wisdom on Dialogue as a Habit of the Heart, published by SkyLight Paths. If you prefer, you can read an excerpt first.

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About - John Backman

Headings: About

Paragraphs: Officially... A spiritual director, bigender person, and quasi-hermit, I write and speak about ancient spirituality and the unexpected ways it collides with postmodern life. This includes a book (Why Can't We Talk? Christian Wisdom on Dialogue as a Habit of the Heart, published by SkyLight Paths), and personal essays in Catapult, Tiferet Journal, Evolve, Amethyst Review, and Sufi Journal, among other places. I've also presented at a range of conferences, including Parliament of the World's Religions.; Personally... My home is in the Christian tradition, though I drink deeply from Zen as well. In the grand scheme of LGBTQ+, I am Q, specifically bigender. Since a life crisis in 1993, the divine nudge has moved me away from a successful career in marketing and toward the place I inhabit today, where I write intense personal essays (like this one and this one), live with my beloved wife and animals, serve as spiritual director to the occasional seeker, and daily sit in a Presence who never fails to surprise me.

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based on the provided information, it can be inferred that Dialogue Venture is an organization that focuses on spiritual exploration and contemplation. The presence of links to pages about "what is contemplation," "spiritual direction," and "essays" suggests that the organization aims to provide resources and insights for individuals seeking spiritual growth and understanding. Additionally, the inclusion of links to a book titled "Why Can't We Talk Christian" and an excerpt from the book indicates that the organization may engage in discussions and reflections on Christian spirituality. The mention of "speaking" and "contact" pages implies that the organization offers opportunities for individuals to connect with others and engage in dialogue about spiritual matters. While the specific nature of the organization's activities cannot be fully determined from the provided information, it appears to be centered around promoting spiritual exploration, contemplation, and dialogue.""