

""Twitter handle (and profile name): RiseNowUS (Rise)

Twitter description: Rise is a coalition of sexual assault survivors and allies working to codify civil rights. To date, we've passed 60 laws for more than 100 million survivors.

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Our mission is to help everyday people pass their first law. The Hope-a-nomics' organizing curriculum serves as the blueprint to drive democracy and scale hope that can easily be applied to other social issues, empowering ordinary citizens to pen their own civil rights into existence."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: Pass your own law. Change your community | Rise Now Nonprofit; Accessibility Tools; Increase Text; Decrease Text; Grayscale; High Contrast; Negative Contrast; Light Background; Links Underline; Readable Font; Reset

Headings: Pen your own rights; Our incredible journey so far; The Most Successful Legislative Reform Movement in U.S. History; Hope is contagious; Why do you Rise?; Meet those who Rise to the occasion; Rise in the Press; Follow us on Instagram; Follow our journey

Paragraphs: There is no greater season for change. We want to help you pass your own law.; Learn more about Rise Justice Labs; Along the way, it became something even bigger: a model for how anyone can drive democracy, scale hope, and create change.; We are leaders from #MeToo, #StopAsianHate, Women's March, and March for Our Lives - the largest grassroots organizing moments in recent US history. We started by fighting for survivors of sexual violence and collectively, we've passed more than 65 laws.; Explore sexual violence survivor rights across the nation by clicking on a state below.; Subscribe to our newsletter to get insight on how we rise together to change the world.; We are leaders from the largest grassroots organizing moments in recent US history, and have gathered our experience to teach you how to pass your own law.; Privacy & TermsCompliance; Accessibility Tools

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: A civil rights organization that changes laws. We are Rise Now.; Accessibility Tools; Increase Text; Decrease Text; Grayscale; High Contrast; Negative Contrast; Light Background; Links Underline; Readable Font; Reset

Headings: Discover RiseNo one is powerless when we come together. No one is invisible when we demand to be seen.; Rise works to codify civil rights.; Our MissionThrough our theory of hope, our mission is to help anyone who has the vision and drive to pen their own rights into existence.; Our Values; Our Story; "...Amanda realized she had a choice: accept the system, or rewrite the law. So she rewrote the law & created Rise to teach others how to do the same."; Timeline; Rise in the Press; Join the Rise; Follow our journey

Paragraphs: There is no greater season for change. We want to help you pass your own law.; Learn more about Rise Justice Labs; We are leaders from #MeToo, #StopAsianHate, Women's March, and March for Our Lives - the largest grassroots organizing moments in recent US history. We started by fighting for survivors of sexual violence and collectively, we've passed more than 65 laws. We've gathered our experience to teach you how to pass your own law for your community.; Cities across America have incubators for tech startups, but nothing like that exists for civil rights. Rise is demystifying this path for everyone by spreading what we've learned to new causes so that everyone can claim their place in our democracy. It is built on our belief that the best people to solve problems are those that live the problem everyday.; In 2013, during her final year at Harvard University, Amanda Nguyen was raped. On the day that she was raped, Amanda never could have imagined that a greater injustice awaited her than the one she had already been forced to endure. After spending 6 hours that night at the hospital, she discovered that her untested rape kit, the forensic evidence collected from her body, would be routinely destroyed. The police provided no reason about why rape kits were destroyed, but the reason was clear when Amanda stepped into her rape crisis center. The waiting room was filled with women; there were not enough chairs to sit in. Simply, the law has a gender and that gender is not female.; America doesn't give all an equal voice. Too often underrepresented groups are left out of the policy conversations that impact their lives. This rigged system - paid lobbying - sells democracy to the highest bidder which bars marginalized, less resourced people from accessing the legislative process. Walking out of the hospital, Amanda realized she had a choice: accept the system, or rewrite the law. So she rewrote the law & created Rise to teach others how to do the same.; In November 2014, Amanda Nguyen founded Rise, a nonprofit organization which was started to protect the civil rights of sexual assault and rape survivors. It was named Rise to "remind us that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can rise up and change the world."; October 7, 2016; Amanda and Rise passed the Survivor Bill of Rights unanimously through the U.S. Congress. Since then, the Team America campaign has worked to pass the Survivor Bill of Rights on a state-level across all 50 states.; In 2018; after the tragic shooting at Parkland, students, survivors, and friends asked Amanda for advice on passing their own laws to end gun violence. They would become the pilot cohort of the Rise Justice Labs accelerator program, which empowers everyday people with the tools to pen their own rights into existence.; In 2019; Rise hosted the first Survivor Town Hall at the United Nations, continuing the work started by the 2016 Survivor Bill of Rights to expand survivors' access to justice globally.; In 2020; In response to stay at home policies during the COVID-19 pandemic, Rise established the Survivor Safe Haven program to provide information and resources to survivors.; In February 2021; Amanda's call to #StopAsianHate went viral, sparking a movement for AAPI visibility and ending hate crimes against the AAPI community.; In September 2021; Rise produced the first ever Survivor Fashion Show at New York Fashion Week, where survivors of sexual violence and allies walked the runway in a night of reclaiming bodies and empowering survivors.; In December 2021; Rise's "what were you wearing?" exhibit debuted at the United Nations, representing the 1.3 billion survivors of sexual violence and calling on the United Nations to pass a resolution recognizing the rights of survivors of sexual violence globally, because justice should not depend on geography.; In September 2022; Rise changed the world by ushering in a historic United Nations resolution recognizing access to justice for survivors of sexual violence worldwide.; Subscribe to our newsletter to get insight on how we rise together to change the world.; We are leaders from the largest grassroots organizing moments in recent US history, and have gathered our experience to teach you how to pass your own law.; Privacy & TermsCompliance; Accessibility Tools

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based on the provided information, it can be inferred that RiseNow is an organization dedicated to empowering survivors of sexual violence and promoting gender equality. Their website includes sections on their history, press coverage, impact, resources, and ways to join or support the organization. They have had a significant impact through initiatives such as the Universal Survivors Bill of Rights, the Sexual Assault Survivors Bill of Rights, and the Survivor Safe Haven. They also organize events such as the Survivor Fashion Show and the "What Were You Wearing?" art exhibition to raise awareness and challenge victim-blaming narratives. RiseNow collaborates with various partners, including the United Nations, to amplify their message and advocate for change. They offer resources and support to survivors, including a helpline, legal assistance, and counseling services. The organization also engages in advocacy and policy work to address systemic issues that perpetuate sexual violence. Overall, the information provided suggests that RiseNow is a dedicated and impactful organization working towards creating a world free from sexual violence and promoting gender equality."""