Twitter description: Where democracy gets to work.

Description of the organization from a third party source: "The Bipartisan Policy Center is a Washington, DC-based think tank that actively fosters bipartisanship by combining the best ideas from both parties to promote health, security, and opportunity for all Americans. Our policy solutions are the product of informed deliberations by former elected and appointed officials, business and labor leaders, and academics and advocates who represent both sides of the political spectrum. BPC prioritizes one thing above all else: getting things done."

Paragraphs: BPC works with both sides to craft viable solutions that improve lives; Starting in 2002, the work of the National Commission on Energy Policy revealed a real eagerness within both parties to work together to secure shared legislative wins. A few years later, in 2007, the success of the NCEP evolved into plans for something bigger, grander, and authentically bipartisan.; With bipartisan winds at their back, some of the most respected members of both parties, Senate leaders -Tom Daschle, Bob Dole, George Mitchell, and

Howard Baker-founded the Bipartisan Policy Center. BPC quickly became America's smartest, hardest-working advocate for bipartisanship in Washington DC.; BPC was instrumental in moving this once-in-a-generation competitiveness package over the finish line. CHIPS boosts American manufacturing, national security, and the next generation of energy innovation.; Our recommendations were the basis for provisions in the SECURE 2.0 Act to expand participation in workplace retirement and emergency savings plans and extend support to small business owners who are helping their workers prepare for retirement.; We worked hand and hand with representatives and senators to pass more than $1 trillion in investments for infrastructure and the national clean energy transition.; After two years of leading the conversation about reinstating and reforming earmarks, the House releases new guardrails, eight of which align with our recommendations and revitalize Congress's constitutional power of the purse.; BPC is intimately involved in shaping COVID relief legislation. We help ensure Congress provides substantial support to vital programs and industries, such as health care, child care, paid leave, higher education, and housing.; BPC launches the ACE program, which pairs two members of Congress to visit each other's district to discover their shared interests. BPC focuses on pairing members whose districts are different in numerous ways: location, culture, politics, etc. ACE fosters understanding between members and their constituents.; The Cures Act-which reflects most of the recommendations in our report, "Advancing Medical Innovation for a Healthier America"-will create groundbreaking medical innovations that help millions of Americans with life-threatening diseases.; In 2011, BPC's analysis of the impending debt ceiling-and the disastrous consequences of breaching it-is lauded by House Republican Leadership and the Obama Administration as a driving force behind congressional approval to raise the debt ceiling.; A task force at BPC, known as the Domenici-Rivlin Debt Reduction Task Force, releases a bipartisan plan to solve the nation's fiscal crisis. The plan, along with the Simpson-Bowles Commission proposal, is still referenced as the roadmap for addressing the nation's debt.; This site is protected by reCAPTCHA and the Google Privacy Policy and Terms of Service apply.
