Our differences provide an opportunity to learn from one another and we believe that is reason enough to seek each other out. We believe the best way to learn from each other is to engage in intelligent conversation.; An intelligent conversation is one where we gain knowledge from whom we are speaking. We create places where we seek out, learn from, and celebrate each other's differences through intelligent conversations.; Create places where you can talk about anything; The exchange and evaluation of ideas is our greatest mechanism for individual and collective development. For this to happen, we need a place where we can talk about anything. We create places where no topic is taboo and where people can speak freely without the fear of harsh judgment. We create places where strangers can meet, talk, and have public opportunities for positive interactions. We believe that by making conversation with strangers more accessible we can positively transform both individuals and the communities, cities, and countries that they live in.; Encourage meaningful face-to-face conversation; The people we know provide a sense of intimacy and connection, but it's important to remember that strangers can also contribute to our sense of belonging. Even though momentary, a quick hello, or a nod of acknowledgment can make us feel less isolated.; We are creating face-to-face conversations as a counter-cultural response to social isolation. We are looking to be present with people and remove distractions to have focused and uninterrupted dialogue. Intelligent Conversation

Headings: How FreeIC Started

Paragraphs: Free Intelligent Conversation is the brain-child of Kyle Emile, who at the time was an undergraduate psychology student from southwest Michigan. In the fall of 2012, with the help of 3 other friends, this side-project began in Wicker Park, Chicago.; During the summer of 2013, our conviction of this idea spread to some additional friends, and on our college budgets, we decided to spend the money for gas, parking, food, and so forth, in order to commute two-hours to and from Chicago, twice a week.; Each time we went out, we set one goal and one rule: the first, to encourage conversation, the second, that no person or conversation was off limits. We went into these conversations expecting nothing in return, but always left feeling enriched from what we had talked about and learned from strangers.; We received incredibly positive feedback, people seemed to love the idea. We were featured in the Chicago Tribune, a few small radio shows and blog, and a couple tweets here-and-there. After being asked by a lot of people if there was a way they could join in, we decided that it was time to start thinking seriously of how to share this with the rest of the world.; Since then, we've been spreading the movement, encouraging more and more people to join and help out. The movement has spread beyond Chicago-we've now been in 30+ countries worldwide. Our group is now made up of a diverse background of people, who are passionate for better interaction amongst individuals and groups within society.; We want this to be a social movement that fosters empathy and better understandings amongst different groups of people.; HomeAboutContactShop; Signs & CardsPlan an Outing; FacebookInstagramTwitterNewsletter; 1301 Clay St. #71181 Oakland, CA 94612contact@freeic.org
