

""Twitter handle (and profile name): NYUPeace (NYU Peace Research & Education Program)

Twitter description: Working at the intersection of #HigherEd & #Peacebuilding, PREP supports the activation of local networks of peacebuilders in #Iraq #Colombia #Kuwait & @NYUCGA

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Universities can be catalysts for peacebuilding. Working at the intersection of higher education and peacebuilding, the Peace Research and Education Program (PREP) supports the activation of local networks of peacebuilders. PREP is located at the Center for Global Affairs within New York University's School of Professional Studies. With its university affiliates in Iraq, Colombia, and Kuwait, PREP aims to give support to academic institutions and local actors that are in the process of rebuilding the social fabric of their communities in the wake of years of violent conflict. Along with its affiliates, PREP elicits knowledge and develops and implements formal and informal peacebuilding education programming in communities facing long-term effects of violence."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: NYU SPS Peace Research and Education Program

Headings: Universities can be catalysts; for peacebuilding; We work at the intersection of higher education & peacebuilding; PREP creates opportunities for young people to build on their skills and passions to create more peaceful communities.; WINNER of 2023 PREP STUDENT PEACE RESEARCH AWARD ANNOUNCED; Recent Publications

Paragraphs: PREP is the home for field-based peace research and action at NYU SPS & the Center for Global Affairs.; People are resilient and have the capacity to build more peaceful communities. PREP aims to give support to academic institutions and local actors that are in the process of rebuilding the social fabric of their communities in the wake of years of violent conflict through formal and informal education and joint research; Young peacebuilders in Sheikhan, Iraq wrote, produced, and directed this short film as part of a University of Duhok and PREP project aimed to strengthen youth capacity in in peacebuilding.; We connect master's students with peacebuilding professionals and organizations throughout the world to gain international peacebuilding work and research experience through courses & events at the NYU Center for Global Affairs.; PREP is proud to announce that Matt Roman (MSG 2024) has been named the winner of the 2023 PREP Student Peace Research Award. Matt's paper, entitled "The United Delhi Cricket League" was the unanimous choice of the contest's evaluators. One of them wrote that Matt's paper "was creative, easy to follow, read, and evidenced by a real understanding of peacebuilding approaches, methodologies, and outcomes." Congratulations on a job well-done, Matt, from all of us at PREP!; ; Moreno Ojeda & Helmsing | 2021; PREP published the English-language version of this interdisciplinary exploration on the prospects for peacebuilding in Colombia's post-Agreement context with recommendations, based on critical analysis of the process to date, offer clues to be considered in order to make the Peace Agreement's results more effective. The Spanish-language version was published by the University of Externado.; MSGA Alumna Rosalie Fransen ('16) and PREP's Thomas Hill and Katerina Siira contributed a chapter on "The Role of Conflict Transformation Education in Building Community-led Peace: The Case of RESURPAZ."; The Spanish-language version of the article can be accessed here.; ; Hill, Siira & Stoumen | 2023; Understanding what is meant by peacebuilding effectiveness is both a complicated and straightforward endeavor. On one hand, it is clear that peacebuilding can only be considered effective if it benefits those who are most affected by or at risk of suffering from the consequences of violence. However, determining which people qualify as "most affected" can be a contentious process -- and forces us to prioritize some local voices over others.; Our work at New York University's Peace Research and Education Program (PREP) suggests that the answer lies in a participatory approach that develops deep understandings of priorities and effects as they are experienced at the local level. Only by asking -- and carefully listening to -- members of particular communities can we hope to learn what types of interventions actually change people's lived experiences for the better on a day-to-day basis.; ; Siira, Rincon, Hill & Palacios | 2020; The historic 2016 Peace Agreement between the Colombian government and the FARC-EP created a framework for the transformation of the country after more than 50 years of armed internal conflict; the transition to a more peaceful Colombia is, in part, to be catalyzed by the Comprehensive System for Truth, Justice, Reparation, and No Repetition. Two years on, a collaboration between master's students from the Center for Global Affairs at New York University's School of Professional Studies and researchers from RESURPAZ of the Escuela Superior de Administracion Publica sought to capture perceptions of peace and and reparations among youth, ex-combatants of the FARC-EP and survivors of violence committed by the state and the FARC-EP in Algeciras, Huila, Colombia, a municipality highly effected by violence. Their insights documented in this bilingual collection of work offer an important reminder that the road to a more peaceful Algeciras and Colombia runs directly through the communities most effected by violence.; About Contact Follow

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based solely on the information provided, it can be inferred that this organization is likely involved in promoting peace and global affairs. The presence of pages dedicated to their mission, what they do, who they are, publications, and events suggests that they are actively engaged in disseminating information and facilitating discussions on peace-related topics. The inclusion of social media links and external resources such as books and articles further indicates their commitment to sharing knowledge and engaging with a wider audience. The mention of the Center for Global Affairs and the focus on peacebuilding in Colombia suggests a particular interest in international relations and conflict resolution. Overall, the organization appears to be dedicated to fostering peace and understanding through education, research, and advocacy."""