Paragraphs: Since 1981, the Peace & Justice Center has been a Vermont leader in creating a just and peaceful world, tackling the interconnected issues of human rights and economic, social, and environmental justice.; The PJC leads our own campaigns but also works for collective liberation with other local and grassroots organizations and activists on the issues that matter the most to us. We host justice-based workshops and events for the public and individual organizations. We run a small storefront dedicated to creating opportunities to educate local consumers on issues such as child labor and livable wages.; Learn more about our work;; We use education, advocacy, and activism to advance the interconnected issues of human rights and economic, social, and environmental justice. We seek true and meaningful peace within and beyond Vermont.; The Peace & Justice Center is a membership-based organization. Members of the PJC support positive social change, locally and globally.; The premise of Peace & Justice Center's work is that our political, social, and economic institutions were built on principles that favored some (male, white, typically abled, straight, cis-gendered, wealthy, powerful) at the expense of others (women and gender nonconforming people, people of color, differently abled, LGBTQI, the 99%, and the nonviolent).; These dynamics are embedded in our culture's DNA. The PJC is committed to raising awareness of injustice, redressing the harms of generational oppression, and equipping people with tools to lead viable social change movements that include and empower all people and ultimately, create a peaceful and just world.; We are a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. Summaries of Links: Based solely on the provided information, it can be inferred that this organization is involved in various activities and initiatives related to education, community engagement, and social justice. The presence of links to pages for education workshops, community engagement, and a library and fair trade store suggests that the organization offers educational programs, promotes community involvement, and supports fair trade practices. Additionally, the inclusion of pages for membership, volunteering, and events indicates that the organization relies on community participation and engagement. The mention of a shop and a donate page suggests that the organization may generate revenue through sales and donations to support its activities. Furthermore, the links to social media platforms and a newsletter imply that the organization actively engages with its community and disseminates information about its work. While the specific mission and focus of the organization cannot be determined from the provided information, it is evident that it is involved in multiple areas of community engagement and social impact."""
