

""Twitter handle (and profile name): projectciv (projectcivamerica)

Twitter description: Join the civility revolution! Participate or host a monthly civil discussion about policy. Founded by @asmithfield

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Promoting monthly civil discussions in libraries and classrooms throughout America. Offer a teacher/librarian resource page for links to standards that a ProjectCiv discussion supports, SEL Foundation standards, a Conversation Guide you can have students fill out to prepare for a discussion, and more!"

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: ProjectCivAmerica - promoting monthly discussions in libraries and classrooms throughout America

Headings: Resources for Teachers and Librarians; Start Your Own Project Civ Chapter!; Topics; Recent Posts; What Should the US Do About Ukraine?; The Kyle Rittenhouse Case; Should the Federal Govt. Require Covid-19 Vaccinations? Should Schools?; The Peaceful Transfer of Presidential Power; Should There Be Police Officers in Schools

Paragraphs: ProjectCivAmerica; promoting monthly discussions in libraries and classrooms throughout America; Can one discussion a month make a difference? We say yes! A ProjectCiv discussion in your library or classroom can help you expose your students to a variety of perspectives, build background knowledge, and yes, meet those state standards. Your students will have the opportunity to share their ideas, and receive feedback in an environment without intimidation or fear.; ProjectCiv Day might just become your favorite day of the month- the day that you are reminded that what unites us as Americans is stronger than what divides us!; Even better, you can start a ProjectCiv club! This is a great way to use lunch, before school, or after school time to have kids read, discuss, and debate, under your guidance, of course!

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: How to Host a ProjectCiv Discussion - ProjectCivAmerica

Headings: How to Host a ProjectCiv Discussion

Paragraphs: ProjectCivAmerica; Are you interested in hosting a ProjectCiv discussion in your library or classroom? It's easy! These steps can help, but remember to make projectciv work for you!; Got questions? Contact projectcivamerica@gmail.com and we'll get back in contact with you!;

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based solely on the provided information, it can be inferred that Project Civ America is an organization with a website that focuses on civic education and discussions. The presence of pages such as "About," "History," and "Contact" suggests that it is a formal organization. The inclusion of a blog, resources for teachers and librarians, and topics for discussion indicates that it aims to engage and educate individuals, particularly students and educators. The website also includes articles on current events and controversial topics, which suggests that it encourages critical thinking and informed citizenship. However, without further context or external information, it is not possible to determine the specific mission, values, or activities of this organization."""