Twitter description: Public finance, economic policy, #civictech, #democracy, and all things #NewOrleans. Just trying to stay dry.

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Kelsey Foster has worked with the Committee for a Better New Orleans since 2013 and previously worked as the communications coordinator for the New Orleans Coalition on Open Governance, of which CBNO was a founding member. She holds a bachelor's degree in print and multimedia journalism from Emerson College in Boston, Mass., where she also completed a minor in history. Ms. Foster is the People's Budget New Orleans campaign director, a campaign focused on systematically improving the City of New Orleans' budget process to allow for more meaningful resident participation. She has overseen the development and implementation of the Big Easy Budget Game, a first-of-its-kind interactive website that asks every day New Orleanians to play mayor for a day to balance the city budget and offer insights into the needs of our diversity communities. The budget game was awarded the 2017 NationSwell Tech Impact AllStar Award hosted by Comcast/NBCUniversal and has been scaled to two American cities so far."

Headings: What We Do; We work to create equity and opportunity for all New Orleanians by developing community leaders, fostering civic engagement, and advocating for open, effective, accountable government.; Our Vision; Our Values; Help power our impact.

Paragraphs: A New Orleans that is equitable, sustainable, and thriving.; ; We believe that all New Orleans residents deserve fair access to opportunity and the avenues that lead to it, such as education, employment and good health. We put the people systematically excluded from government participation at the center of our work to reform and protect equitable, community-driven processes. We know that democratic systems respond to people who have the know-how and energy to engage, and seek to shift power to people that are most often excluded or marginalized, especially people of color, people with low wealth or socioeconomic status, LGBTQ+ people, and women.; In our organization, in our work, in our city, we celebrate the multitude of cultures and backgrounds and consider it one of our greatest communal strengths. We honor and respect all people, have compassion for their individual challenges, and support them in their quest for a good quality of life. We value the wisdom and support the leadership inherent in all New Orleans communities.; Convening, connecting and collaborating with many diverse partners is essential to our work and central to our ability to serve. We build bridges, develop networks, and collect and share information to enhance all our partnerships.; To serve the community, we must be with the community: listening, asking, supporting, and including. We are guided by those we serve; we are always open and accountable to them.; Building on research, best practices, ongoing evaluation, and - always - community input, we seek constant improvement, broader perspectives, and breakthrough achievements. Taking thoughtful risks is necessary to success.; Every action we take is intended to generate results, to promote a more equitable, sustainable, and thriving New Orleans.; COMMITTEE FOR A BETTER NEW ORLEANSPO Box 791570 New Orleans, LA 70179 | (504) 356-3156 | INFO@CBNO.ORG; Made with Squarespace
