

""Twitter handle (and profile name): LivingRoomConvo (Living Room Conversations)

Twitter description: Building understanding and transforming communities since 2010

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Living Room Conversations enable people to come together through their social networks as friends to engage in a self-guided conversation about an agreed-upon topic. Typically conversations have self-identified co-hosts who hold differing views."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: Living Room Conversations - belonging starts with conversation

Headings: belongingstarts with conversation.; how we connect.; Question of the Week; Trending Topics; Conversations in Troubled Times; Abortion; Mental Health; Guns and Responsibility; Featured by; Love what we do?; Donate; Sign Up; Copy this code to add the Question of the Week to your website!

Paragraphs: We connect people across divides - politics, age, gender, race, nationality, and more - through guided conversations proven to build understanding and transform communities.; Is your New Year's resolution to have better conversations? Sign up for tips, event notifications, resources, and more.; In the small mountain community of Estes Park, Colorado, residents gather monthly to strengthen their sense of interconnectedness and talk about the issues facing them - from guns and responsibility to homelessness.; "The hope is to build local capacity to engage in difficult issues more collaboratively and productively," said Denise Lord, executive director for Estes Valley Restorative Justice Center.; Click here to continue reading...; Every month, thousands of people access our resources. These are some of the topic guides which are currently trending. Explore more at our Topics Page.; Disruption, tragedy and conflict are part of our human story. Whether in our own backyard or internationally, deep histories...; Read more...; Why can it be so difficult to talk about abortion? What is really at the heart of the debate?; Read more...; What experiences in your life, your work or your family inform your understanding of mental health?; Read more...; What role have guns played in your life? Where did you learn about guns? And what did you learn?; Read more...; All our work is made possible by our incredible donors. If you've enjoyed Living Room Conversations, donate!; Join our mailing list to hear about upcoming events and opportunities. Your information is kept totally confidential.; Our work in healing divides is made possible through the donations of generous supporters like you!; Living Room Conversations is an open source project. Please use, share and modify with attribution to Living Room Conversations.; Questions? Contact Us.

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About Us - Living Room Conversations; Featured; Virtual Event; Virtual Event

Headings: all about living room conversations; our story; mission; vision; Where is your living room?; get started today; annual reports; the pilot; the project; frequently asked questions; The Transformative Power of Self-Compassion; Connecting Your Library Community Through Conversation; Stay connected with all things conversation!

Paragraphs: Connect Your Library Community Through Conversation with the American Library Association; We can build trust in elections and each other.; We invite you to consider how you offer yourself love and compassion with a Valentine's Day event!; Living Room Conversations (LRC) connects people within communities and across differences through dialogue to build trust and understanding.; We believe belonging starts with conversation and are committed to designing the resources and opportunities that allow everyone to feel seen and heard while celebrating the differences that make us unique. Our four organizational pillars help to guide our work and everything that we do.; We hope for a world in which people who have fundamental differences of opinion and backgrounds learn to work together with respect - and even joy - to realize the vibrant future we all desire for ourselves and our families.; Steeped in the tradition of gathering in parlors to talk (parlor or parlour comes from the French and means a "place for speaking"), Living Room Conversations bring people together to generate understanding and connection. The parlor of today is any place - physical or online - where we find ourselves connecting with others. Our unique conversational model makes it easy for anyone to create a safe and welcoming environment where people can respectfully discuss important issues.; Welcome to your first step into the world of bridging divides and using conversation to increase understanding. Whether you have five minutes to answer one thought-provoking question or want to be part of a longer conversation, we can help. Check out our topic guides and get talking today!; In late 2010, Joan Blades partnered with dialogue experts, Walt Roberts, Debilyn Molineaux, Amanda Kathryn Roman and Heather Tischbein, to create a structured, intimate conversation format that would empower everyday citizens to discuss important issues with friends of differing political affiliations and backgrounds.; read more; read less; Inspired by the success of the pilot, Amanda Kathryn Roman and Joan Blades formed a transpartisan political partnership, recruited an advisory board and launched the website to make the Living Room Conversations open-source format available to individuals and organizations around the country.; read more; read less; Living Room Conversations are structured to increase understanding, reveal common ground and allow us to discuss possible solutions. No fancy event or skilled facilitator is typically needed. When people of all walks of life begin to care about one another, they can begin working together to solve the problems of our time.; Cohosts are best when they have a different perspective than you. Think about your friends with whom you have respectful disagreements. Cohosts are great, but not necessary, so don't feel constrained if you can't find one.; Think about people who are interested in having meaningful conversations about our world. Conversations are richest and most fun when there is diversity of perspective represented. Think about many kinds of differences: age, gender, culture, politics and more. You may be surprised at the range of opinion on a particular topic in a group that seems homogeneous.; While you don't need to provide food or beverages, having those available is a hospitable gesture that supports conversation. When we share snacks together, we tend to be more sociable.

Having a potluck or meeting at a coffee shop can work.; Living Room Conversations can happen anywhere a small group of people can gather in a comfortable and relatively private space. You can even gather online using platforms like Zoom, or our preferred video conversation platform, Junto (in beta testing).; Absolutely! Community meetings are happening in several places in the country. We've developed a guide based on our experience that can help you plan.; What's most important is being in a space where you and the group feel safe to have a conversation that explores your values and opinions. It's also important that your conversation be in a place where others are not disturbed. Someone's home may be the best place. Sitting under a tree in a park or in a coffee shop might also work.; No facilitator necessary! All you need is the conversation guide. Everyone in the group is responsible to own and guide the conversation. This said, with a video Living Room Conversation it is often helpful to have one of the hosts get things started and watch the time so that the conversation can wrap up in time.; The materials are absolutely free! Living Room Conversations is an open source project. Please use, share and modify with attribution to LivingRoomConversations.org.; The conversation guides-more than 100 of them!- are found under topics on the website.; You can read the conversation agreements here!; The conversation agreements are six common sense ground rules for engaging in a respectful conversation that supports openness and curiosity rather than debate. They let people know what is expected of them and create a safe environment for a great conversation.; The conversation agreements are found under "resources" on the website and are available as the first page of the pdf conversation guides.; You can watch or listen to a recorded Living Room Conversation here.; We also host monthly Living Room Conversation LIVE events, where you can watch a streaming conversation in real time. Sign up for the next one or watch our past LIVE events here.; The best way to learn about Living Room Conversation is to participate in one.; You can see highlights of a conversation here as well as a complete conversation here. Watch even more LRCs and related videos and podcasts on our Watch and Listen page.; You can help Living Room Conversations grow and expand by completing our feedback form or by writing a blog telling us about your experience. We'd love to see photos of your group (just contact us about that) and to hear your suggestions for topics you'd be interested in hosting.; Our work in healing divides is made possible through the donations of generous supporters like you!; Living Room Conversations is an open source project. Please use, share and modify with attribution to Living Room Conversations.; Questions? Contact Us.; sign up for updates; donate; Our work in healing divides is made possible through the donations of generous supporters like you!; follow us; upcoming events; Subscribe to receive stories, conversation tips, resources, and updates.; (function ($) {_x000D_ window.fnames = new Array();_x000D_

window.ftypes = new Array();_x000D_

fnames[0] = "EMAIL";_x000D_

ftypes[0] = "email";_x000D_

```
fnames[1] = "FNAME";_x000D_
ftypes[1] = "text";_x000D_
fnames[2] = "LNAME";_x000D_
ftypes[2] = "text";_x000D_
fnames[4] = "MMERGE4";_x000D_
ftypes[4] = "zip";_x000D_
fnames[3] = "LGL_SAL";_x000D_
ftypes[3] = "text";_x000D_
fnames[5] = "LGL_ID";_x000D_
ftypes[5] = "text";_x000D_
})(jQuery);_x000D_

var $mcj = jQuery.noConflict(true);;
```

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Living Room Conversations appears to be an organization dedicated to promoting civil dialogue and understanding among people with different perspectives. They provide resources and guidance for hosting conversations on various topics, including trust in elections, race, politics, mental health, and more. The organization emphasizes the importance of empathy, listening, and respecting diverse viewpoints. They also offer training and support for individuals and groups interested in facilitating these conversations. Furthermore, Living Room Conversations collaborates with various institutions, including schools, libraries, and businesses, to expand their reach and impact."""