

""Twitter handle (and profile name): LisaMPZ (Lisa M PytlikZillig)

Twitter description: ?

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Lisa PytlikZillig is a researcher at the University of Nebraska's Public Policy Center. Her research on public engagement relies heavily on the use of experimental and quasi-experimental methods in a variety of applied contexts."

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: What We Do | University of Nebraska Public Policy Center

Headings: Top Menu; Main navigation; What We Do; Civil & Government Systems; Community Engagement; Disaster & Emergency Planning; Education & School Safety; Health & Behavioral Health; Violence & Suicide Prevention; Frequently Asked Questions; Services; Our Statewide Impact; Latest News & Events; Social Media Feeds; Facebook; Twitter; Policy Talk; Our Partners; Contact Information; About; Connect; Focus Areas; Social Icon Menu; Our Funding Sources

Paragraphs: We are celebrating 25 years of linking policy and research. Stay informed about our activities with our monthly Policy Talk newsletter.; The Public Policy Center is a university-wide, multidisciplinary research and outreach unit committed to addressing complex issues by linking academic research, stakeholder perspectives, and practical experience through innovative and creative solutions. Our mission is to link policy with research, process, and practice by working with researchers, policymakers, and stakeholders to actively inform public policy.; ; Center researchers team with policymakers and other stakeholders to bring expertise in the following areas: strategic consulting and planning, communications, data collection and analysis, evaluation, events and seminars, facilitations, grant writing, project management, research, and surveys. Our researchers are not involved in policymaking, but their data-focused approach helps inform public policy decisions. Visit our services page to see a full list of the services we offer, or visit our focus areas page to learn more about our work in specific areas.; ; To find out about upcoming trainings, conferences, or events, join our Policy Talk newsletter or follow us on Facebook and Twitter. We regularly host virtual and in-person trainings in a variety of areas, including: behavioral health, suicide prevention, disaster preparedness, threat assessment, school safety, and public policy. Many of these items will also be posted on our events page.; To work with the Public Policy Center, call 402-472-5678 or email us at ppc@nebraska.edu. We can direct you to a staff member working in your specific area, or you can visit our staff directory for more information on a specific staff member.; ; We collaborate in grant writing, project management, and research to inform policymaking. Our researchers are not involved in policymaking, but their data-focused approach helps inform public policy decisions. We link local, state, and federal policymakers to academic and scientific resources and approaches to address important public policy issues covering a wide range of content. Learn more about some of this work on the focus areas page under Civic and Government Systems and Community Engagement.; We take on a wide variety of projects, including those needing help with program design and evaluation; conferences, trainings, and seminars; grant development and management; project management, strategic consulting and planning; scholarly research; and stakeholder and community engagement and outreach. For examples of specific projects, visit our focus areas page.; Center researchers garner both public and private funding at the local, state, and national levels, for both applied and research grants, as well as through contracts and donations. For a list of some of our recent funding sources, visit our funders page.; The Public Policy Center has had the privilege of working with many well-known organizations, both locally and nationally, over the years. We collaborate with government agencies, legislature, non-profit organizations, educational organizations, and more. Our staff have also worked with over 100 faculty from over 50 departments across all NU campuses. Visit our partners page to see a list of some organizations we have worked with recently.; No, we work all across Nebraska, but our work extends nationwide and around the globe. Our staff have consulted with organizations around the country, collaborated on research and projects around Nebraska and across the country, and presented in national and international trainings.; The Public Policy Center was established in 1998 by the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska. The Center is a University-wide unit that resides institutionally within the UNL Office of the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. Our official name is the University of Nebraska Public Policy Center, which emphasizes our system-wide status.; For many of our active projects, our staff plan and execute conferences, workshops, and seminars of all sizes, virtual and in-person. This includes event management, technology recommendations, graphic design, communications, and accommodations for in-person and remote-hosted events. Additionally, staff are experienced in managing all logistics for virtual and in-person events. The University of Nebraska Public Policy Center is an approved continuing education sponsor through the American Psychological Association (APA). This means we can facilitate psychologists' access to continuing education that meets APA standards.; We pursue and manage funding opportunities to support policy-related initiatives. Center researchers garner both public and private funding at the local, state, and national levels for applied and translational research grants. We work closely with partners to identify funding opportunities, develop grant and contract proposal narratives, create budgets and timelines, execute agreements, manage grant funds in accordance with funder requirements, and submit required fiscal and programmatic reporting.; Center research staff routinely conduct program evaluations in partnership with stakeholders to define questions, plan activities, interpret results, and use findings to recommend and implement changes. We use quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methods techniques appropriate to the project. Our programmatic capabilities include survey design, interviews, focus groups, mapping geographic data, overall data analysis, and report preparation.; Our researchers bring high-level management expertise to projects for all kinds of organizations. We bring research-based insights to executive decision-making, develop organizational structures to achieve desired results; assist with communication planning, agenda setting and creating necessary informational materials; implement research plans; and guide open communication among stakeholders. Our researchers are trained in facilitation and regularly lead stakeholders through strategic planning, problem definition, and consensus-building, as well as discovering organizational priorities, setting goals, and creating action plans.; Our approach is rooted in academic-oriented inquiry and investigation. We provide basic research products for partners such as high-quality and easy-to-understand literature reviews, white papers, and briefing papers. Our researchers come from diverse disciplines, including: Business, Economics, Family and Consumer Sciences, Law, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology.; We work with stakeholders to design and execute customized frameworks. This includes determining the breadth, length, location, and timing of facilitated events; identifying participants; collecting data from participants throughout the planning or engagement process; creating opportunities for feedback and debriefing; and producing draft and final products based on results. In addition, many of our staff consult with outside organizations and conduct professional presentations on a variety of issues.; ;

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About | University of Nebraska Public Policy Center

Headings: Top Menu; Main navigation; About; History; Secondary Main navigation; Latest News & Events; Our Partners; Contact Information; About; Connect; Focus Areas; Social Icon Menu; Our Funding Sources

Paragraphs: We are celebrating 25 years of linking policy and research. Stay informed about our activities with our monthly Policy Talk newsletter.; The University of Nebraska Public Policy Center (PPC) provides a unique opportunity for policymakers and researchers to work together to address the challenges of local, state, and federal policy. Center researchers bring professional expertise, rigorous academic methods, and effective processes for stakeholder involvement to enhance collaborations and achieve important social outcomes.; Over the past 25 years, the PPC has worked with a wide variety of local, state, and federal organizations to help external partners utilize University resources to research important questions and bring about real-world solutions. The PPC can assist with policy-oriented research, consulting, data collection (e.g., interviews, focus groups, surveys) and analysis, program evaluation and management, as well as strategic planning, public and stakeholder engagement, and facilitation. Center faculty and staff are dedicated to employing their disciplinary approaches, along with the expertise of policymakers, and the voices of stakeholders, to inform public policy that responds to a variety of needs and issues within our community.; The Public Policy Center was established in 1998 by the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska. Although the Center is a University-wide unit, it resides institutionally within the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Office of the Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. In tandem with all contractor requirements, the PPC also conducts research with human subjects under the auspices of UNL Institutional Review Board policies and procedures.

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Summaries of Links: Based on the provided information, it is evident that the organization is the University of Nebraska Public Policy Center (PPC). The organization's primary focus is on public policy research and analysis, with an emphasis on civil government systems, community engagement, disaster emergency planning, education and school safety, health and behavioral health, and violence and suicide prevention. The PPC collaborates with various partners, including government agencies, educational institutions, and non-profit organizations, to conduct research and provide policy recommendations. The organization also offers a Washington, D.C. Professional Enrichment Academy program, which provides students with opportunities for academic study, internships, and professional development in the nation's capital. The PPC is committed to diversity and inclusion and strives to create an inclusive environment for its staff and stakeholders. The organization's website includes information about its services, research focus areas, funding sources, and contact details."""