Description of the organization from a third party source: "The New Mexico Peace Choir is an inclusive choral group of about 75 voices. Our mission is to reach people's hearts and use the power of music to move them in positive, constructive ways - "By our actions and by our voices, we will make a positive change in the collective consciousness." We perform music that encourages our listeners to act in more kind, generous and compassionate ways toward their fellow humans. We believe that peace in the world starts with peace in each person. The New Mexico Peace Choir performs concerts in Albuquerque and Santa Fe. The choir also performs at a variety of events and gatherings throughout the year. Some examples include representing the US at the World Peace Choir Conference in Vienna, participating in the premiere of The Great War Symphony at Carnegie Hall, performing in Albuquerque Pride Day events, providing inspiration to the Committee to Protect Journalists conference and supporting organizations in Albuquerque that help the homeless, Hopeworks and Albuquerque Healthcare for the Homeless."
