

""Twitter handle (and profile name): CitizenUniv (Citizen University)

Twitter description: Building a culture of powerful, responsible citizenship across the country. Founded by @ericpliu. #LiveLikeACitizen

Description of the organization from a third party source: "Citizen University works with a national array of partners to help Americans cultivate the values, systems knowledge, and skills of effective citizenship. "

Scraped text from their home page of their website: Titles: Citizen University

Headings: Site Navigation; Citizen University; Equipping you with the tools to build a stronger civic culture.; Equipping you with the tools to build a stronger civic culture.; There's a place for you here. Where do you want to start?; Receive our email newsletter; Learn how to strengthen the civic health of your community; Power + character; A Breath of Fresh Citizenship; Civic Symphony; Finding citizenship in the space between grief and joy; Find your people at Citizen University; Find your people at Citizen University; Explore Navigation; Social Navigation; Utility Navigation; Site Menu; Site Navigation Paragraphs: We all have the power to make change happen in our communities - and the responsibility to try. Here at Citizen University, we equip civic catalysts with the ideas, strategies, and spirit to build a culture of powerful, responsible citizenship in cities across the country. Ready to work together?; We all have the power to make change happen in our communities - and the responsibility to try. Here at Citizen University, we equip civic catalysts with the ideas, strategies, and spirit to build a culture of powerful, responsible citizenship in cities across the country. Ready to work together?; Whether you are long-time civic catalyst or visiting for the first time, jump right in.; You'll find inspiring ideas, upcoming gatherings, and program updates right in your inbox.; Civic power is how we can be a force for good and civic character is what you do when everybody's looking.; Taking a counterintuitive approach to busyness and burnout: a rejuvenating Zoom call.; An original poem by Hakim Bellamy for Civic Saturday.; Three ways you can develop heart-driven citizenship.; Connect with all kinds of Americans who are building a stronger civic culture in communities across the nation.; Connect with all kinds of Americans who are building a stronger civic culture in communities across the nation.; We envision a great civic revival across our nation - our dream is a country in which Americans are steeped in a sense of civic character, educated in the tools of civic power, and are problem-solving contributors in a self-governing community.; Citizen University is a 501 (c)(3) non-profit organization.; (C) Citizen University 2024

Scraped text from their about page of their website: Titles: About â†† Citizen University

Headings: Site Navigation; You are here;; About Citizen University; About; We envision a great civic revival across our nation.; We are working to realize the country we know is possible.; We believe that the American creed promises everyone freedom, equality, and justice.; Our Story; Our Task; Our Core Beliefs; Our Programs; And you may be wondering...; Receive our email newsletter; Explore Navigation; Social Navigation; Utility Navigation; Site Menu; Site Navigation Paragraphs: We are a non-profit organization that equips Americans to be civic culture catalysts.; Citizen University's mission is to build a culture of powerful, responsible citizenship across the country.; We design gatherings, rituals, and workshops for people who are searching for new ways to strengthen civic culture in their hometown. In our programs, these civic catalysts explore ideas (like power + character = citizenship), pick up new tools, develop connections, and build a renewed sense of civic spirit. They're sparking new ways of thinking about citizenship, deepening the resolve to take responsibility, and rekindling faith in our democracy and one another.; Our dream is a country in which Americans are steeped in a sense of civic character, educated in the tools of civic power, and are problem-solving contributors in a self-governing community.; A mass multiracial democratic republic that works for everyone. A society with healthy, responsive institutions where every person feels represented and knows how to contribute. A society where we share responsibility for strengthening community and country by reckoning with our past, and recommitting to each other.; Whether one's family has lived on this land since time immemorial or has only recently arrived. We envision a society in which that promise is truly realized for everyone, because America is not America until "we the people" means all the people.; It's one thing to feel responsible, and another to actually have the toolkit to make things happen. Citizen University was the first place that I came to.; Citizen University began with a simple idea: what if each of us believed we had the power to make change happen in civic life, and felt a responsibility to try? Evolving from an annual conference to national programs, we gather and train people to become effective civic catalysts. Explore->; We're countering a culture of hyper-individualism, cynicism, and powerlessness. Everyone in the Citizen University network is building a different kind of culture - one of powerful, responsible citizenship. Explore->; Our work is rooted in the belief that democracy matters - and it is never a given. Democracy relies on strong citizens and a healthy civic culture to survive and thrive. In this time of polarization, we work with "partisans for democracy" wherever they come from. Explore->; We design gatherings, rituals, and experiences that revitalize and strengthen civic culture. Our programs equip you to bring these home to your community. Explore->; What do you mean by "citizen"?; We speak of citizenship in the deep ethical sense, as the way we show up for our community - not just what passports or papers we may have. Citizenship is about participating and taking responsibility for the good, the bad, and the ugly of our society. It's about practicing civic power and cultivating civic character. Wherever our ancestors and we were born, we can find purpose by choosing to live like a citizen.; Read more about citizenship ->; Are you an actual university?; We're a university in spirit! We're in the business of inspiring new ways of thinking and feeling about our role as citizens. We connect the curious, the passionate, the do-ers. We equip people with the tools they need to improve their communities. And then we encourage everyone to put those ideas into action throughout their lives. So yeah, we're a university - a citizen university. (But no, we don't offer degrees or charge tuition!); Learn how you can participate ->; You'll find inspiring ideas, upcoming gatherings, and program updates right in your inbox.; We envision a great civic revival across our nation - our dream is a country in which Americans are steeped in a sense of civic character, educated in the tools of civic power, and are problem-solving contributors in a self-governing community.; Citizen University is a 501 (c)(3) non-profit organization.; (C) Citizen University 2024

Scraped text from their mission page of their website: Titles: NA

Headings: NA

Paragraphs: NA

Scraped text from their history page of their website: Titles: Our Story â†† Citizen University

Headings: Site Navigation; You are here;; Our Story; Where it all started; Launching our programs; Expanding around the country; Propelled by spirit and driven by justice; Receive our email newsletter; Explore Navigation; Social Navigation; Utility Navigation; Site Menu; Site Navigation Paragraphs: Becoming one of the country's most vital civic organizations.; Citizen University began with a simple idea: what if each of us believed we had the power to make change happen in civic life - and felt a responsibility to try?; From that first spark, we have grown into an organization focused on equipping citizens around the country with the tools, ideas, and relationships needed to make civic culture change take root - all with a strong dose of civic spirit. Explore the history of CU!; As some of our longtime friends will tell you, Citizen University started out as a two-day national conference. Our co-founders Eric Liu and Jena Cane had been part of a team organizing an annual gathering on the art of mentoring. A few years in, they realized the central theme of citizenship: how we create and sustain community and how we pass on our values and knowledge to others in the community.; In 2012, the conference took the name "Citizen University." This convening brought together a wide range of national civic innovators and everyday citizens for a few days of deep learning, spirited conversation, and strengthening civic commitments. As the years went on, interest in this work began to grow. Our definition of citizenship (that citizenship = power + character) was one that resonated with many. We thought, how else might we share these ideas with our community? And that's how we started running programs year-round.; Our earliest programs, like Joy of Voting and Sworn-Again America, gave a taste of our secret sauce: creating civic rituals that reanimate people's sense of commitment to our democracy and each other.; Photo by Emma Trew; After the seismic impact of the 2016 election, we held the very first Civic Saturday - a civic analogue to a faith gathering. We didn't know how many people would show up, but over 200 people turned out that day, packed into the basement of Elliott Bay Bookstore in Seattle. We saw how important it was to have a space for reflection, reckoning, and recommitment to living like a citizen. So we began designing gatherings, learning experiences, and rituals to help people around the country be stronger civic catalysts in their own communities.; Explore our current programs ->; Photo by Leslie Claire; Our work has connected us to collaborators and citizen partners from coast to coast. We've worked on CitizenFest conferences in Memphis, Joy of Voting projects in Miami, and Civic Saturdays in Maine. But ultimately, we recognized that the work of building stronger civic culture was most effective when led by trusted members of local communities who felt called to spark a renewed sense of democratic spirit in their hometowns. We call these people civic catalysts, and they are at the heart of our work.; Every year we add to the hundreds of people who have trained with us in our Civic Saturday Fellowship program. Our Youth Collaboratory welcomes two cohorts of high schoolers each year. We've held over 30 National Civic Collaboratory meetings that have spurred hundreds of collaborations between civic innovators. Our newest initiatives - Citizen Refined and Local Civic Collaboratories - are beginning to spread through community foundations, YMCAs, schools, and other local organizations.; In the face of incredible challenges facing our communities and our country, the need to continue building strong civic culture feels as urgent as ever. So what comes next for CU?; ; We will continue to seek out Americans of all stripes - to help create a new narrative that can take hold in communities and spur action by sparking new civic embers person by person, community by community. For the civic catalysts in our program communities, we are developing new ways to deepen and strengthen relationships, resources, and knowledge sharing to build these networks. We are growing our partnerships and collaborations with organizations nationwide.; As an organization striving to strengthen the civic health of our communities and democracy, we recognize that living up to the values of liberty and justice for all starts with each of us. Our team has been reckoning with what it means to be equitable in our practices, to promote justice, and to create a sense of belonging for all. We choose these words intentionally as we see them in service of our mission of building a culture of powerful, responsible citizenship. Read more about our equity, justice, and belonging commitments.; No matter the program, civic spirit will always be a deeply embedded part of our DNA. Imagination, creativity, joy - these concepts are not just nice to have. We see them as essential elements of a vibrant and sustainable civic culture. To be certain, the work of fostering a strong democracy is not always easy. But we know that our country's ideals are not made real by the mere fact that they are written on paper; they come to life and legitimacy through the internal commitments and beliefs held by our citizens. And that takes heart.; As we like to say, democracy is a garden - and we each have a role in tending it. We hope you'll join us in taking on this important and sacred responsibility. No matter the challenges we face together, our nation will always need strong citizens. And as our work grows, we will proudly remain true to that foundational ethos that power + character = citizenship. Let's get to it.; You'll find inspiring ideas, upcoming gatherings, and program updates right in your inbox.; We envision a great civic revival across our nation - our dream is a country in which Americans are steeped in a sense of civic character, educated in the tools of civic power, and are problem-solving contributors in a self-governing community.; Citizen University is a 501 (c)(3) non-profit organization.;

(C) Citizen University 2024

Summaries of Links: Citizen University appears to be a non-profit organization dedicated to fostering civic engagement and promoting active citizenship. They offer various programs and initiatives aimed at educating and empowering individuals to participate in civic life, such as the Civic Saturday Fellowship, Citizen Redefined, Civic Collaboratory, and Youth Collaboratory. The organization also provides resources and learning opportunities on topics related to citizenship, faith, and living as a responsible citizen. Additionally, they have a job board and accept donations to support their mission. Based on the information provided, it seems that Citizen University is committed to promoting civic engagement and encouraging individuals to take an active role in their communities."""